Cultivating the Postal Service's Digital Channels: White Paper Support

Disclaimer

This is a Request for Information (RFI) and planning ONLY and does not constitute a solicitation. A response to this RFI is necessary to assist the U.S. Postal Service Office of Inspector General (USPS OIG) in determining the potential levels of interest, adequate competition, and technical capability for a potential, but not certain, future solicitation. The OIG may issue a future request for proposal (RFP) only to those Suppliers that respond to this RFI. Companies not responding to the RFI may be precluded from participating in any future competitions related to this requirement. Additionally, the USPS OIG reserves the right to conduct a limited competition based on the responses received from this RFI, and merely responding will not guarantee an invitation to participate in the potential future RFP. The Government is not responsible for any cost incurred by industry in furnishing this information.

Organizational Background

The USPS OIG is an independent federal law enforcement agency providing oversight to the U.S. Postal Service (USPS) and the Postal Regulatory Commission (PRC). Its mission is to:

- conduct and supervise objective and independent audits, reviews, and investigations relating to Postal Service and PRC programs and operations,
- promote economy, efficiency, and effectiveness within the Postal Service and PRC, and
- inform the Postal Service Governors, Postal Service management, PRC Commissioners and Congress of problems, deficiencies, and corresponding corrective actions.

Project Background

The white paper will analyze digital revenue trends, benchmark USPS digital channels against those of foreign postal operators and/or domestic competitors, identify opportunities to increase revenue through digital channels, and identify opportunities to improve the user experience of digital channels. The Supplier will work with the OIG to answer research questions 4, 5, and 6 within the Statement of Work. The paper will focus on digital channels for the general public and small businesses. The paper will not include a review of digital channels designed for commercial mailers and shippers, such as Postal Pro.

For more information, see the attached Statement of Work (SOW).

Purpose and Objective

The purpose of this RFI is to perform market research and obtain information on market capabilities able to meet USPS OIG potential requirement for analyzing digital trends.
