Hey Kenton,

We had a brief conversation today about partnering on some Govcon stuff. Attached is a pdf breakdown my system produced for what is referred to as an RFL (Request for Lease) solicitation out in Sacramento, California.

It is important to note that we do not have to be located in sacramento to bid on this project. We just need the domain knowledge and capability to facilitate it.

The attachment is broken down in 5 sections:

- scope of work
- technical requirements
- deliverables and timeline
- evaluation criteria (how they evaluate your bid)
- submission checklist

See the attachment, and let me know your initial thoughts.

Ian,

Thanks for sending this over. I think I understand the idea—you'd identify government leasing opportunities, and we'd find and represent a qualifying property owner.

What would each of our roles be, how would we get paid, and do you already have a property or owner lined up?

Also, can you send me the original SAM.gov notice and attachments? A few details in the pdf don't line up, so I'm not sure whether this is the official notice or just a summary.

Best,
Kenton

So our roles, on this project or any other project would be myself acting as researcher, making requirements clear and managing any administrative tasks including creating and submitting the proposal.

You would acting as the domain expert, finding properties based on the requirements and negotiating prices or deals with property owners and managers.

This particular solicitation didn't have any attachments. But the link is here: <https://sam.gov/workspace/contract/opp/a56d6d81c1fa4115a5f5923fc1f261b3/view>

Following up on the last email and answering your other questions,

The document attach explains in depth the govt payment cycle. But in short, they pay monthly and in arrears. So the first payment cycle would not be until about 45-60 days from the first date of occupancy. So that would need to be negotiated. I do not have a property owner lined up. I really just sent this over as an example but we can definitely work this one if you want to get started right away. I'm already registered and can bid on anything.

Thanks, that helps clarify the division of responsibilities. I definitely like the idea of partnering on something like this and splitting up the roles this way.

Before approaching any owners, I'd need to understand the compensation structure—who would pay the commission, how it would be divided, and how that arrangement would be documented. I'd also want to confirm that any submission would be made on behalf of the property owner under an executed exclusive representation agreement, since registration alone wouldn't authorize us to offer a property.

Since this one was mainly an example and we still have plenty of details to sort out, we can wait before deciding whether to pursue Sacramento. But I do like this and am willing to work with you on it.
