I was admitted on May 11 at Wellstar in north Fulton for emergency surgery. My intra vaginal ultrasound and Ct showed possible ovarian torsion, & available surgeon OBGYN was Dr. Kevin J Edmonds . He explained that it can be corrected with the minimally invasive laparoscopic procedure. After the surgery when I came to senses and asked to talk to doctor he came and shared the good news that my ovary was fine still had blood supply no torsion in ovary but problem was with fallopian tube which was badly twisted so they had to remove it. He then met my husband & explained him how he was able to save the ovary and how sometimes the scans & ultrasounds don't show exact picture unless we open and look into it. The damaged fallopian tube was covering the ovary & the imaging showed reduced blood supply to the ovary. He was very particular about ovary in perfect shape and considering my age and planning for baby how he saved the ovary & just removed fallopian tube We were so thankful to him and gave the news to our family & friends that left salpingectomy was done successfully as mentioned in the tissue exam report from MyChart (patient portal of Wellstar) I was in hospital for next two days and was discharged on May13. During my stay after surgery not once Dr. Edmonds visited me. Instead Dr.karen Hamilton filled in and treated me for my leukocytosis post surgery my wbc count was abnormally high. I was given Iv antibiotics, didn't help again I was put on 4hr continuous antibiotics in the night & tested again my wbc levels were not normal. I was getting concerned & start questioning Dr. Karen why Dr.kevin did not come to see me and I wanted to talk to him. She simply said he is away for 3 days and he cannot meet me or talk to me. Then I asked about my lab pathology report and wanted to know the diagnosis, underlying cause of torsion which will help me in future fertility treatment planning my baby.I also asked for the removed part of fallopian to perform religious rites. She just said it's under examination in lab and did not answer me properly. I also was concerned & asked how long will I be kept in hospital & what is their next plan of action now that my wbc levels are not normal again and I was concerned the more I stay the more I have to pay & As I was showing concerns & raising questions She didn't have proper answers and left citing she has other patients waiting for her & never to be see in person again. Later she spoke to me over nurse phone and updated that I can get discharged now we need not wait until levels come down to normal. Dr. Janet Boone visited me right after she left and started to pacify me about how I can continue my iron & other supplements after getting discharged and told that they are discharging me even before my wbc levels were not normal considering the fact they saw downtrend in the level. I asked whereabouts of surgeon to her again she said they can arrange for a phone call with the surgeon if I want. I agreed but that was not initiated. She convinced me to get discharged for now and come back only if I have fever of 101.4 . She explained if I'm doing fine I follow up with the OBGYN & motivated me did some pep talk. After she left the nurse, tech & assistants hurried to discharge me. My discharge papers showed still pathology lab results were pending. But my patient portal had updated tissue exam lab results and recorded in May 11 8:47pm clearly mentioned left salpingectomy and received specimen of fallopian tube with diagnosis of no viable ovarian tissue identified recorded. On the day of May 13 lab tissue exam report was printed dated May 13 & uploaded in my chart in scanned documents. I was able to access the details after I felt better in about three or four days later and to my shock the reports mention of ovary adherent to fallopian tube specimen was received. If the adhesions were cleared the surgeon could have saved my ovary. The fallopian tube was removed without noticing of any adhesions to it. There is a clear possibility of surgical error here and the surgeon avoiding to talk to me after surgery hence proves. My dreams of naturally conceiving have been shattered and we are in complete shock & trauma. We have complete trust in the board and we await our answers & justice. Dr. Karen Hamilton lied clearly about Dr. Kevin's availability where in he was monitoring & approving my bloodwork & test results as per patient portal details hence reporting her as well. Request the board to help and guide us as we are left stranded right now .

Alleges poor outcome from laparoscopic procedure. Alleges poor care and treatment.

Dear Mr. Slater:

This letter serves as the written response to the patient complaint filed by Mrs. Roohi A. Allah alleging poor outcome from the laparoscopic procedure, poor care, and treatment.

5/11/25, Ms. Alhad presented to the ER at Wellstar North Fulton Hospital with acute severe abdominal pain, and after initial evaluation and imaging, she was diagnosed with possible left ovarian torsion. I, Dr. Kevin Edmonds, was the OBGYN Hospitalist on shift 5/11/25, and was consulted by the ER attending to confirm the aforementioned diagnosis. After reviewing the chart, radiologic imaging, and examination of the patient, I was concerned about ovarian torsion. I discussed the diagnosis and surgical treatment plan with the patient and husband at length for ~30 minutes. Informed consent was obtained before the procedure started with all risks and complications discussed, including removal of the ovary.

Ms. Alhad subsequently underwent an operative laparoscopy with left salpingectomy without complications. After procedure findings and treatment were discussed with her husband using pictures and models for ~ 1 hour, and with the patient in recovery. She was seen on 5/11/25 by Dr. Janet Boone, and again, surgery treatment was reviewed with her.

5/12/25, Dr. Karen Hamilton saw her. Surgical treatment was also reviewed.

After discharge from the hospital, the patient reviewed the pathology report in Mychart and became concerned about ovary removal, as which patient had been informed on multiple occasions that only a left salpingectomy was performed and documented a normal ovary remained. The patient was not satisfied with the explanations and filled out an unsatisfactory patient survey. Ms. Alhad was contacted, and multiple levels of Wellstar North Fulton Hospital responded to her concerns and reassured her of the surgical treatment and pathology report.

6/5/25 Ms. Alhad was seen by Dr. Urania Davis for outpatient surgery follow-up. Again, the surgical findings, including pathology, were reviewed. Pt. Desired to speak to me directly and I was contacted on an off day to reach out to Mrs. Alhad by the hospitalist Medical Director, Dr. Boone in which I graciously managed.

6/11/25 at 2000 I spoke with Mrs. Alhad for ~ 29 minutes and reviewed the surgery and pathology report confirming no ovary removal. At that time Mrs. Alhad was very apologetic about the negative survey she had filled out and desired to "take back" her complaint, but I assumed it was referencing the patient satisfaction survey and not an official board complaint.

It is my opinion that Ms. Alhad received excellent care throughout her hospitalization and at every level was completely informed on every facet of her care. I feel this brief response shows evidence of her care. Please reach out to me directly if you have additional questions.

Respectfully,

Kevin Edmonds
